Description

A leather cased, silver plated Travel Pepper Pot.

The case is made of two leather sleeves, with one fitting over the over much like a cigar case. Its stamped with a Royal Coat of Arms flanked by angels with trumpets.

The vase shaped Pepper Pot is made of good quality silver plate with the domed top pierced to shake the pepper. The pot is decorated with beading and has a light gilt wash to the interior. It is engraved to the front with a heraldic device of a mythical bird's head holding a branch and the date 1889.

The pot is well made and with the absence of the case there would be no indicator that it was made for travel. Dated 1889.

Case size is given.
