Description

An Asian hardwood Lounger Chair from India.

The undulating shape of this chair immediately makes it look comfortable. The seat and back rest is made of woven cane work to allow the air to easily circulate in a hot climate, making it ideal for a conservatory or veranda. The arms of the chair are on turned uprights with turning also to the front legs and the spindles of the front rail.

The design of this chair probably originates to the turn of 1900 but its popularity meant it was produced for a number of years. Early to mid 20th Century.
