Description

A silver and glass Travel Flask in leather case by Drew and Sons.

The cup fits inside the lid of the case and so on top of the flask when packed. The case has a belt strap to secure it which fits fully around the case, so the two parts of the case remain attached. The flask is a very tight fit to the case which has either been done intentionally or by age. The flask's cap opens on a bayonet fitting and is cork lined for a watertight fit. The flask has a narrow shoulder to provide a good fit for the cup.

The set is hallmarked for London 1903 to both the neck of the flask and the outside of the cup, which also has a light gilt wash to its interior. Drew sold a wide range of travel items from furniture to picnic sets from their large Piccadilly premises. They also sold to suit most pockets with silver plated items available for those who didn't want to spend on silver. Hallmarked 1903.

Case size is given.
