Description

A rectangular mahogany Campaign Mirror.

This mirror works to a common design in that the protective cover board is hinged to fold back on itself and become a foot for the mirror to stand. The mirror has a brass domed stud to the top which fits to a hole in the top of the cover board. Pushing the stud makes it easier to remove the cover board. The hole that it fits into can also be used to hang the mirror.

The mirror is made of mahogany with some parts in mahogany faced plywood. Late 19th Century.

Size standing on its foot is given.
